GENTLY! GENTLY!

[Among the wounded lately brought to one of the Philadelphia wharves, was a young soldier whose limbs were fearfully shattered. Though evidently in intense pain, he uttered no cry, but as the carriers raised the "stretchers" he was on, he whispered—"Gently! gently!"]

Though he neither sighs nor groans,
Death is busy with his bones;
Bear him o'er the jutting stones
Gently! gently!

Sisters, faithful to your vow,
Swathe his limbs and cool his brow;
Peace! his soul is passing now
Gently! gently!

He has fallen in the strife!
Tell it to his widowed wife,
And to her who gave him life,
Gently! gently!

Loudly praise the brave who gem
With their blood our diadem;
And their faults—oh, speak of them,
Gently! gently!

Why Editors Should be Exempt.

A Fortress Monroe telegram, received recently, informs us that the "New Military Exemption Act," passed by the Rebel Congress on the 4th ult., "secures the liberty of the press by exempting editors, and such help as they require in their business." We consider this action on the part of the Rebel Congress eminently wise, and we trust that our Congress will pass a similar act exempting the above useful class. Editors should be exempt by all means, for the following reasons:

1st. Because they would sooner stay at home than go to war.

2d. Because there is more fun writing about war than "joining in" and helping stop rebel bullets.

3d. Because if they haven't all got large families of small children depending on them for support, no one knows but that they may eventually be placed in that responsible position.

4th. Because there are enough "dead heads" in the army already.

5th. Because it is pleasanter to die for one's country at home, amid the Autumn and Winter, with familiar forms around you, and to be buried in the family burying ground, than to be knocked into the middle of next week by a four hundred pound ball, and left on the field, to help manure some miserable secesh farm.

6th. Because, as we remarked before, they would much prefer to stay at home.

We trust the Government will attend to this matter at once. If Congress will only exempt us fellers, we will esteem it a great favor, and try and do as much for them sometime.—Exchange.

Sharp on the Insurance.—Jacob Barker, of New Orleans was a generation or two ago a merchant in New York. The reputation for shrewdness which he now bears is no late assumption, as those who had dealings with him well remember. The following story, it is believed, has never, until recently, been in print:

About the time referred to, which was before the time of insurance companies, he applied to another Quaker, named H—— who was accustomed to insure individual policies, for insurance on a ship then homeward bound on a distant voyage. There were great doubts of the vessel's safety, and the premium asked was probably high; and even with a large premium, H—— did not wish to take the risk. However, he promised to consider the matter, and, if satisfactory, to sign the policy the next day. Early the next morning, Barker sent him a note in the following words:

"Friend H——, if thee has not signed the policy thee need not, for I have heard of the vessel."

H——, thinking the vessel was of course safe, hastily signed the policy and returned it by the messenger, with expressions of regret that he could not undo the business. Barker had, indeed, heard of the vessel, and heard that she was lost.

Going to Rest.—Did you ever know a child, though half dead with play, who was willing to go to bed? How they will wink, open their poor eyes, and stare about, and linger round the bright lamps, and plead for a reprieve, "just a little longer, just five or ten minutes!" Time will cure them of that soon enough, poor things; so don't try to teach them the lesson now.—Let them "sit up" before the evil days come when sleep is the most coveted boon on earth; when they dread nothing so much as waking to a new day, and its repetition of weary struggles with wrong and wrong doers, lighted by glimpses as of sunshine go few and so transient. Crowd into the children's insect life all the little innocent happiness you can, that they may have that, at least, to look back upon, when they have no longer the wish or the power to "sit up."

SPEECH OF HON. DANIEL S. DICKINSON.

We give below the speech of the Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson, of New York, delivered at the great Union War Meeting in Brooklyn on the 24th ult., under the auspices of the Southern Union Refugees. Speeches were made by Col. A. J. Hamilton, of Texas, Judge Frazer, of Florida, and Gen. Rogers of Tennessee. Every true lover of his country will endorse the sentiments of the eloquent and patriotic speaker.

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen: I came as a hearer, and not as a speaker, here this evening. I breakfasted in Washington about 5 o'clock this morning, and not having dined yet, I won't fix the time. Reaching my hotel a few moments since, I found a note there, saying this meeting was being held, addressed by our friends from the South, and I immediately started for the meeting. I started with as much promptness as the gubernatorial candidate of the Submissionists did for Wisconsin when I heard the rebellion had broken out.—[Laughter.] And I made about as good time as he did in getting away. I wanted to hear a voice from the South, to hear some gentleman who had refused, when the sack-but and psaltry and harp of Secession, to fall down and worship.—I have been much interested as I have no doubt all of you have, and now to detain you at this late hour of the night would be unjust to you as well as myself.—[Loud cries of "go on," all over the house.]; Imprimis, then: All was quiet on the Potomac this morning.—[Uproarious laughter.] I saw all the authorities at Washington, but I speak by no authority, I do not profess to—but I will tell you, my fellow-citizens, that which you have a right to know, that which you ought to know, that you will find those waters sullied at a very early day. [Cheers.] I have every reason to believe that the Administration are arising to the full necessities of the occasion, that they comprehend this matter, and intend to grasp it with an iron hand, and at a very early moment. [The audience at this moment rose to their feet, and cheered with the wildest enthusiasm.] And I trust we shall all learn at a very early day that some [illegible] to every loyal man, and make the knees of every Belshazzer tremble as did the one of old. [Cheers.] It is complained that we accuse our opponents of being disloyal. They say they are the Democratic party! I deny that they are the Democratic party. ["Good." and cheers,] or any fraction of the Democratic party. I follow principles, not men; events and not names. Names prove nothing. The little boy as soon as he can run alone wants a horse; and he gets astride of a stick, and whips it up, and calls it a horse. But it is not a horse, after all. The little girl has a doll, and calls it a baby.—Well, it isn't a baby. In the city, they have one dressed in style in high finish; in the country, they are made of rude cotton, features put on with ink or charcoal. They are called babies, but they are not babies. They call this the Democratic party; but it is not the Democratic party. It answers as a mere hobby for the little politicians to ride and call it a Democratic party. It answers for those who are more juvenile just to dandle upon their knee and call it a Democratic party. But it is not—it is not anything. The masses of the people are the Democratic Republican party. [Cheers.] And the masses occupy to-day the position of the old Democratic party of Andrew Jackson [Cheers.] And these men knotted together for base purposes, I insist are the Democratic party in no sense whatever. It is a feeble, diluted, weak, dwarfed imitation of the Federalism of 1812 [laughter,] with all its mischief and none of its respectabilty — politically, I mean. We have been cursed North and South with politics.—[Cheers and laughter.] This rebellion is an office-holders' and office-seekers' rebellion! In the loyal States, when this rebellion was inaugurated, politics were driven out; but these persons found a tenement empty, swept and garnished, and they took seven other spirits more wicked than themselves and entered into it and dwelt there. [Cheers and laughter.] And the last state of the people shall be worse than the first. [Great laughter.] They are loyal, they tell us.—Mr. Seymour says he is accused of being disloyal. I have not accused him—do not think so; but I will tell you what I do think. There was a clergyman in Northern Pennsylvania, who was accused of some improprieties; and it was a matter of grave concern, referred to a Committee, who investigated for two weeks, and reported on the subject, in the presence of the church and a large audience, that they did not believe Brother Smith guilty of any impropriety in the matter, but they thought his conduct was fast leading to it? The Rebellion has three elements upon which it relies: One is foreign intervention and their own military prowess; one is yellow fever at the South, and the other is this spurious Democratic party at the North. [Laughter.] These are the elements upon which they rely, and they are acting together to-day. This pretended Democratic party acting in concert with the worst element of the malignant monarchies of the earth, railing and grinning a ghastly and horrible smile, like Milton's devil, over their success and prosperity in this country. A Democracy is rising up to aid foreign intervention, and shake hands with the yellow fever to help put down loyal people and loyal States in their efforts to crush out this infernal rebellion. [Applause.] A more infamous and atrocious rebellion never existed since Satan made war in heaven. It must be met with all the material of war; it is a crime against God and man, and he is an honester man in the sight of God who murders and robs than he who aids this atrocious Rebellion, and who murders States, peoples, posterities as well as men. I arraign at the bar of the world that man who dares to palter with this thing in a double sense. Here is a great conflict, two great interests at war, both cannot be right; can any one doubt which is wrong? This thing is no more a Democratic party, and has no more right to claim to be one, than Lucifer has a right to claim that he is an angel of Heaven. [Applause.] I have labored for the South that they might have all their rights under the Constitution; but when they cast away this Constitution, and made war upon it, then I said they had no right to protection under it. Having played the physician for years to attempt to cure this limb, now I will play the surgeon to cut it off. [Great applause.] Slavery is an unnatural state of things, and the world's progress is against it. I am no party Abolitionist; but as an exercise of the war power, I am for taking the thing out by the roots.—[Applause.] I am for employing every element which will strengthen loyalty and crush this rebellion. [Applause.] I set no bounds to the determination to put this rebellion down; there is nothing in all the boundaries of heaven and earth that I would not do, and I would stretch the letter of both to do it. [Loud cheers.] It is better that whole generations of men should pass away that that this great tree of liberty should be plucked out by the roots. How many have fled here from the oppression of earth to take shelter under this great, genial tree of liberty, which has shot its roots far down into the center earth and extended its branches up to where the children play amid the beams of the [illegible] freedom's soil on freedom's holy land! and he is a parricide who shall attempt to destroy it; and on the great day of account when the murderers of earth shall draw near, their crimes shall whiten in comparison with those who shall raise their hands against the country's Constitution. [Great applause.] I invoke you to put forth your strength in this coming contest, and although it is a mere local struggle; yet, it is of great importance to the life of this great nation. I believe the fate of this mighty nation depends in a great degree on the result of this election. If this nation must go down in tears of blood, in the name of Heaven, let us not speed the shaft which shall be driven to its vitals? If our nation must die, let not the great Empire State strangle it in its last terrible throe! So that we shall be compelled to say—

"So the struck eagle, stretched upon the plain,
No more through rolling clouds to soar again,
Views his own feather in the fatal dart,
Which winged the shaft that quivered in his heart.
Keen were his pangs, yet keener far to feel,
It nursed the pinion which impelled the steel;
While the same plumage which warmed his nest,
Drank the last life-drop from his bleeding breast."

If our nation dies, then, in God's name, let not the Empire State speed the arrow.

The meeting then adjourned with the most tumultuous applause and tremendous cheers.

Nine Follies.—To think that the more a man eats the fatter and stronger he will become.

To believe that the more hours children study at school, the faster they learn.

To imagine that every hour taken from sleep is an hour gained.

To act on the presumption that the smallest room in the house is large enough to sleep in.

To argue that whatever remedy causes one to feel immediately better, is "good for" the system, without regard to more ulterior effects.

To commit an act which is felt in itself to be prejudicial, hoping that somehow or other it may be done in your case with impunity.

To advise another to take a remedy which you have not tried yourself, or without making special inquiry whether all the conditions are alike.

To eat without an appetite, or continue to eat after it has been satisfied, merely to gratify the taste.

To eat a hearty supper for the pleasure experienced during the brief time it is passing down the throat, at the expense of a whole night of disturbed sleep, and a weary waking in the morning.

"I'm afraid, sir, you are in a settled melancholy." "No, madam, my melancholy won't settle—it has too much grounds."

The End of the Revolt.

We hear no more of fresh forces being raised at the south. The rebels have apparently made their greatest efforts. Their levies have drained the whole rebel south, and the entire available military population has been forced into the field against us. To replace these they have filled every southern city with hospitals, where sick and mangled Rebels abound. We say hospitals, but in point of fact every house at the south, and the whole of rebeldom, is becoming one vast infirmary. We have but to remain as courageous, patient and enduring as we have been, and with the exhaustion of the present rebel armies the rebellion will be conquered. Peace is now the earnest prayer of two-thirds of the people of the south, as well those in arms as those still at home, and an immense majority anxiously ask for peace at any price. They have learned in sackcloth and ashes what secession means. They have tasted of the bitter fruits of nullification, and in their sorrow for the slain, or their commiseration for the sick and wounded, they silently vow in their hearts that if ever the States all get together under one flag once more, no serpent tongue shall tempt them to rebel again.

This war is marching steadily onward to its true goal. It was necessary that the rebel leaders should have full swing; but they should fight to the uttermost, and drain their deluded States of the best blood they contained and impoverish them of their resources. When the end comes, as come it must now ere the lapse of another year, the rebellious south will be purged with fire and the sword purged by her own act and her own people; and though the standard of the great republic must be planted amid the ruins of States once prosperous and powerful, it will be firmly and enduringly implanted, never to be torn down again, nor to be defied and trampled upon by rebels.

It is not in reason that any country like the south, with a sparse white population, could sacrifice such countless thousands of her sons and millions of ere wealth without reaching that exhaustion and prostration which precludes all further effort. The south has expanded its levies of troops to equal every fresh levy of the United States, forgetting that this could not be carried on without draining every [illegible] up to the size of an ox, and swelled until it burst. The catastrophe is not far distant.—Philadelphia North American.

The Career of a Murderer.

Matt. Ward has been shot in Arkansas by a guerrilla, and is probably dead. The history of this man is a romance wild enough to make a small fortune for the vender of "yellow covered" literature. He is the brother of Sallie Ward, formerly the wife of T. Bigelow Lawrence, of Boston, and afterwards a female adventurer. A brother having been chastised at school in Louisville, by Mr. Butler, the master, Matt. took the earliest opportunity to murder the man. The excitement was terrible, and John J. Crittenden undertook the defence of the assassin. He took pains to remind the jury that the Wards were one of the first families of Kentucky, and therefore it was too much that the culprit should suffer the penalty of his crime. Teachers have never been popular in Kentucky. A verdict of acquittal was rendered, but it seemed as though retribution followed the jurymen. Many of them died violent deaths, within a brief period afterward. Matt. was compelled to leave Kentucky, however, and finally found a home in Arkansas and purchased a plantation near Helena. He was there when General C. E. Hovey arrived. Matt. was afraid of vengeance from the "schoolmaster soldiers" of the Thirty-third Illinois regiments, but he was not fated to die at the hands of a teacher. On the 2d of October a company of rebel guerrillas siezed his negroes, to convey them to Mississippi to work on fortifications. Ward was protesting himself against the spoliation, when one of them fired upon him, wounding him through the hids, it was supposed mortally.

Thus ends a career whose bright promise was nipped by crime. Matt. Ward had capacities that might have raised him to honor and usefulness.—He was brilliant, accomplished, richly endowed with the qualities that dazzle and the magnetism that extorts homage. He had traveled much; wrote a clever book; and was on the high road to eminence, when he committed a brutal murder. Since then his life has been a wreck.

☞"Have you heard by last sell?" asked a wag, the other day, who is noted for joking at the expense of other people's feelings.

"No," replied Simon, "but I saw the grating over its windows the last time I passed by the lock-up."

☞A portly young friend of ours the other day contemplated for some minutes the ponderous dimensions of a bystander's feet, and then, in a tone of utter wonder, said, as he surveyed the man's upper works: "You'd have been a mighty tall man if they hadn't bent you off so far up."

A Nigger Offering a Reward for His Master.

As it was one of the features with the different Tory Organs in this State, during the late election, to horrify their readers with stories of imaginary negro outrages, they will not object to the narration of the following outrage which an escaped slave commits on his master. It is an extract from the Kentucky correspondence of the Cincinnati Times:

The darkies of secession masters still continue to flock into camp.—There is in camp here a regular witty darkey, who formerly belonged to a Mr. Duncan, now in the rebel army. This negro can read and write—in fact he is a very well educated man. Yesterday some Kentuckians, who had lost several slaves, had posted up around the encampment, "One hundred dollars reward. Ran away from the subscriber, my man Bob," &c.

Jim Duncan—as the boys call him—soon after issued the following and placed it beside the other "adev":

"50 Cents Reward;

"Ran away from dis chile, an' left him all alone to take care of himself after I don worked twenty six years faithfully for him,

"MY MASSA, 'BILL DUNCAN,'

"Massa Bill is supposed to have done gone off wid de secesher, for to hunt for his rights, and I spec he done got lost. Any person 'turnin him to me, so that he can take care of me—as he allers said 'Nigga' couldn' take care of himself—will be obliged to dis chile.

"N. B.—Persons huntin' for him please look in all de last ditches; as I often heerd him talk about goin' into the diein' business.

"'Spectfully submitted, JIM."

This "poster" created a great deal of merriment in camp, while the Kentucky residents who came across it thought Jim a mighty "sassy nigger."

A Man of Nerve.—A venerable American judge relates the following anecdote of a soldier of the Revolution.

The morning following the battle of Yorktown, I had the curiosity to attend the wounded. Among others whose limbs were so much injured as to require amputation, was a musician, who had received a musket ball in the knee. As usual in such cases, preparations were made to [illegible]

"Now, doctor, what would you be at?"

"My lad, I am going to take off your leg, and it is necessary that you should be lashed down."

"I'll consent to no such thing. You may pluck the heart from my bosom, but you'll not confine me. Is there a violin in the camp? If so bring it to me."

A violin was furnished and after tuning he said:

"Now, doctor, begin."

And he continued to play until the operation, which lasted about forty minutes, was completed, without missing a note or moving a muscle.

A U. S. Soldier Hung by the Rebels.—A young man named Johnson, who lived at Martinsburg, was hung to an apple-tree at Winchester week before last. He joined Ashby's Cavalry at the time of the John Brown raid, but when Virginia seceded he left and enlisted in a Maryland regiment. In one of the late skirmishes he was taken prisoner, and a message was sent to Jackson to inform him that a spy had been captured, and inquired what disposition should be made of him. Jackson sent back word to hang him which was accordingly done without any trial being granted, and in the uniform of a United States soldier. It is to be hoped that the Commanding General will take the matter in hand, and if the facts as stated are found correct, demand of the Rebel military authorities an explanation.

Suffering in Minnesota.—The Indian massacres in Minnesota have produced great distress among the settlers all along the frontier counties. Appeals for contributions to aid them are being made in the principal cities, and no object of charity can be more pressing and worthy. The Governor of Minnesota states that at least thirty thousand miserable men, heartbroken women and abject children are wandering, homeless, naked and starving. Certainly our country affords no parallel of suffering such such as this. Clothing is greatly needed by the suffering, for the rigors of winter are close at hand.

Gambling.—Let every man avoid all sorts of gambling as he would poison. A poor man or boy should not allow himself even to toss up for a half-penny, for this is often the beginning of the habit of gambling; and this ruinous crime comes on by slow degrees. Whilst a man is minding his work he is playing the best game, and he is sure to win. A gambler never makes good use of his money, even if he should win.

☞A poet says that "the mountains stand fixed forever." We know, however, that it is no uncommon thing for them to "slope."

☞Short-nosed men shouldn't complain if everybody snubs them, since nature herself sets the example.

Stranger in Town.—We have been gratified by a call from Frederick Ayer Esq., the business man of the firm of J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell. A short acquaintance with the gentleman convinces us that not the Doctor's skill in compounding his medicines is alone concerned in the immense consumption of them; but that it takes business talent of no ordinary men, are to pass them around the world. Mr. Ayer, manifestly has these abilities and the success of his house shows that he uses them. ["Memphis Whig" Tenn.]

☞One of the enrolling marshals, the other day, received a strong hint from a down town female. Stopping at the lady's house, he found her before her door endeavoring to effect with a vegetable huckster a twenty per cent. abatement in the price of a peck of potatoes.

"Have you any men here, madam?"

"No," was the curt reply.

"Have you no husband madam?"

"No."

"Nor brothers?"

"No."

"Perhaps you have a son ma'am?"

"Well, what of it?"

"I should like to know where he is."

"Well, he isn't here."

"So I see, ma'am. Pray, where is he?"

"In the Union army, where you ought to be."

The marshall hastened round the corner. He didn't further interrogate the lady.

☞"Mr. A., I understand you said I sold you a barrel of hard cider that had water in it."

"No, no," was the reply, "I only said you sold me a barrel of water with a little cider in it."

☞Good manners should begin at home. Politeness is not an article to be won in all dress only, to be put on when we have complimentary visit.

☞Carrying politeness to excess is said to be raising your hat to a young lady in the street, and allowing a couple of dirty collars and a pair of socks to fall out on the sidewalk.

☞"This snow storm the boys regard as a joke," said a person to Dr. S., during a late storm. "Yes," replied the doctor, "and it is a joke that any one can see the drift of!"

☞Old gents, cut this out and paste it in your hats: The only way to cure a boy of staying out nights is to break his legs, or else get the calico he runs with to do the house-work!

☞A Galway jury, at the conclusion of an inquest on a blind man who had committed suicide, returned a verdict of "Deliberately done away with."

Lecture.

We are gratified to be able to announce to our readers that Hon. Daniel Agnew has consented to deliver a lecture in the Methodist Church, in this place, on Tuesday evening next 11th inst., for the benefit of the Ladies' Soldier's Aid Society upon "The Spirit and Poetry of Law." There is more of poetry in Law itself and of romance in its practice, than is dreamed of by the uninitiated, to whom the one seems but a collection of maxims and truisms, the condensation of the cold common sense of ages, and the other a mere application of logic to facts, or evidence; and the ability and experience of Judge Agnew furnish a sufficient guaranty that this will be made manifest to his audience in a master'y style.

We can promise to the public a rare intellectual treat, and trust that all those who desire to contribute to the comfort of our suffering volunteers will make it a point to be present.

The lecture will commence at 7 o'clock, P. M. Admittance 10 cents.

How the Election was Carried in Greene County.

The silly vaporings of the Breckinridge-Hughes-Locofoco party, in this Congressional District, over the result of the election, not only merit the contempt of every right-minded man, but excite the pity of those who know by what means that election was carried, over the weak frailty of human nature. It would be almost beyond belief, were it not avouched on the most reliable authority, that means were resorted to in the county of Greene, where the hydra-headed monster of disloyalty has complete sway, to swell the vote of Gen. Lazear, such as no one would suppose any set of men, except rebel sympathizers could be guilty of.

We speak not of the money which was poured out like water, till the circulation of the Farmers' & Drovers' Bank of Waynesburg far exceeded that of all other Banks in the 24th had he been there, would have melted; nor do we now propose to speak of the fighting around the polls, the inevitable accompaniment of a Democratic majority; but we do intend to say that false and illegal votes are said to have been polled for Lazear. That minors were allowed to vote, and afterwards the feat was bragged of; that townships and districts were allowed to hold their elections at places unauthorized by the Legislature, and different from the usual places of voting; that (oh shame to the brow of the miserable hypocrites) negroes and mulatoes were led up to the polls and made to deposit their ballots for Jesse Lazear, while his lickspittle, of the Star, was all the time crying "Abolitionist!" against men who were more honest and conscientious than himself. We further charge upon the same authority, that oppression and persecution, such as would only grace the minions of Jeff. Davis, was brought to bear upon poor men who desired to vote the Republican ticket.

And now, in the face of all this, what base hypocrisy, and utter oblivion of honesty, for the editor of the Star, and his cotemporaries of the Journal, Examiner, and Democrat, to herald forth such things, and such corrupt and damnable practices as a glorious Democratic victory.

☞ We had intended noticing, in proper terms, an anonymous communication signed "NEW BRIGHTON," which appeared in the Star of last week, but refrain upon ascertaining that it was written by a thief, resident in Bridgewater, who was lately dismissed from his position as a clerk in a grocery store, on account of his propensity to appropriate the funds of the establishment.

We presume the editor of the Star, having heard of the circumstance, engaged him at once as a correspondent for that sheet, for which his character peculiarly qualifies him.

We congratulate the people of New Brighton upon the fact that the signature was as false as the communication itself, and that the writer is not a citizen of that borough.

☞ The United States Mint in Philadelphia coins daily from one to two thousand dollars of nickle cents, all of which are distributed as soon as made, but still they are scarce.

The Capture of Eli F. Sheets.

In our issue of last week we briefly informed our readers that Eli F. Sheets, convicted of the murder of John Ansley, had escaped from the Jail of this county, and was re-captured by the Sheriff. We are now able more fully to inform them of the facts.

For some time after his trial, Sheets had been closely confined to his cell, but upon complaint to the Sheriff that his health was rapidly declining by reason of confinement, through the humanity and kindness of heart of the Sheriff, he was permitted during the day-time to sit and walk about in the corridor or hall of the prison, and again locked up in the prison in the evening before dark; but on Wednesday evening, the 22d of October, the locking up in his cell was postponed until rather a later hour than usual. The person who was immediately concerned in aiding his escape took advantage of this circumstance to carry out the plans which had been previously concocted to set him at liberty. A person named Daniel Dumbarington had been employed by the Sheriff as turn-key and servant, in whom he had great confidence, as had every body else who knew him. This man, through certain influences which had been been brought to bear upon him, and under a promise of remuneration, agreed to aid in his escape. Preparations had been made by cutting the bolt of one of the locks of the door of his cell, but owing to his being out of the cell rather later than usual, the affair was managed more easily than was expected. Whilst the Sheriff and his family were at supper, the back door of the prison was opened, and the murderer, having cut his irons with a knife with saw teeth prepared for him, went out the back door, which had been unlocked, into the yard and passed through the gate, it having been left open for him by Dumbarington. After supper his escape was discovered, and immediately steps were taken by the Sheriff for his recovery. Men were started in all directions on horseback, despatches were sent by telegraph to all points, and handbills by the Sheriff, offering a reward of $500 for his apprehension, sent broadcast over the country; but no traces whatever could be discovered of the fugitive in any direction.

Suspicions arising from circumstances, which it would be unnecessary here to state, that Dumbarington had been concerned in the escape, he was arrested on the Saturday following he was committed, and becoming greatly alarmed at his situation he informed the Sheriff that if he would take him out he would show where Sheets was and named the place where he then was. Although his statements about the matter were then considered wholly untrue, the Sheriff consented to go with him to where he said Sheets was secreted. The Sheriff, with a party of persons whom he had requested to accompany him to the place, after some parley entered the dwelling house of Mrs. Barker, widow of the late Dr. R. B. Barker, residing in this place, and after considerable search found the convicted murderer under a bed in the second story of the house, when he was immediately taken into custody and escorted to his old quarters in the jail, there to await until the time arrives when he shall receive such punishment as the laws of God and man have prescribed for him, who is guilty of wilfully, and with a malicious heart, of shedding the blood of his fellow man.

Our citizens were greatly excited when the escape of the murderer was announced, and many were disposed to censure the Sheriff, and to charge him with neglect of his duty; but when it was ascertained that he had been liberated by the turn-key, who, by his general good conduct in the the same capacity for five years, had acquired the entire confidence of the present and former Sheriff, W. W. Irwin, Esq., the most intense excitement was created. But the most extraordinary part of the whole affair was that he should be found in the house of Mrs. Barker, who, with her daughter, Mrs. Craft, were hitherto considered respectable, holding high position, socially. Dumbarington has, since the capture of Sheets, revealed all the circumstances of the escape and the persons who were concerned in aiding in it, both before and after, and we have no doubt that the persons guilty of assisting in turning loose upon society a wretch whom, we have no doubt, was justly convicted of one of the most atrocious murders ever committed, will meet that punishment which is so richly deserved for conduct so criminal.

We shall be glad, indeed, if Mrs. Barker and her daughter, Mrs. Craft, can produce such testimony as will show that they were not guilty; but, as the matter is to undergo judicial investigation, we forbear to present the facts upon which their arrest was made, or to comment upon a case so extraordinary and apparently mysterious. The Star has attempted to vindicate the character and conduct of the ladies; but we must condemn, as all good citizens will, such attempt to create sympathy or prejudice in their favor. At the proper time and place, they will have full opportunity to exculpate themselves if they can. If they cannot, and the facts are against them, let them be punished as others are and should be.

It must be manifest to every person, that from the beginning the hand of Providence is in this matter.—Sheets has had many opportunities of escape before his arrest, and remained in the house of Mrs. Barker for six days and nights, and yet he was not permitted to get beyond the sight of the prison walls. The ways of Providence are mysterious in bringing to justice those who are guilty of violating His laws.

In vindication of the Sheaiff we would say a word. Having entire confidence in Dumbarington, who had always proved faithful and honest, he entrusted the general care of the prisoner to him, and having done so, no negligence on his part could have prevented the escape of Sheets. If he had locked him up in his cell, Dumbarington would have taken him out of it and liberated him as he did.—That there were persons outside aiding Dumbarington can be proved; and if so, the Sheriff, not knowing of or suspecting any intention of the persons concerned, could not have been prepared to prevent them from carrying out their hellish conspiracy. The Sheriff is a perfectly honest man, as all must admit; kind and humane in his feelings, and would suspect no one of so outrageous an attempt to defeat public justice.

The National Tax.

The Assessor of this (24th) District has been very busily engaged, during the last week, holding Appeals and revising valuations under the Excise Law. The Act is now in full operation, and we learn that a large revenue will be raised from Beaver county. As there have been several decisions by the Commissioner upon points submitted by Mr. Davenport, which are of importance and which have not been published, we hereby add a few, which have been handed us for that purpose by the Assessors:

1. Drovers' stands, where cattle drovers are in the habit of stopping over night with their droves, and who

2. But if they furnish liquor they must take out license for that.

3. Keepers of Eating Houses must take out license as retail dealers in liquors, without reference to their amount of annual sales.

4. Cattle brokers who reside in different counties are required to take out but one license, if they are a legally constituted form, and have not more than one office or principal place place of business.

5. If a farmer buys and slaughters, and sells cattle from his wagon, he must be considered a peddler.

6. If a butcher has a stall and sells meat therefrom he must be licensed as dealer. If he goes about selling from his wagon he must be considered as peddler. If, however, he only serves regular customers, at stated periods, from his wagon, he is considered as delivering what has been previously sold or contracted for, and not a peadler.

7. The time of removol is the proper time for ascertaining for taxation purposes the value of goods about to be transferred from the manufactory into the hands of a commission merchant.

8. Farmers, who buy a number of cattle, sheep, hogs, &c., in the spring, for the purpose of selling in the fall, must take out license as Cattle Brokers.

Our readers would do well to preserve these decisions, as they may be found of much value. Mr. Davenport has informed us that he will, from time to time, as various points are decided for him by the Commissioner, hand the same over for publication, for the information of all concerned.

The following is the letter which occasioned the arrest of Rev. Dr. Hay, of Harrisburg, by order of Maj. Gen. Wool, commander at Baltimore:

"Editor of the Telegraph.—I have just returned from Baltimore. Whilst there I feel in with a lady of well known secession proclivities, who boasted of having brought away from Fort McHenry, by permission of Gen, Wool, four of the wounded prisoners lately transferred from Frederick. I inquired if they were in any of the Baltimore hospitals. 'No; they are in the hands of our friends. A dozen ladies scrambled for them, but I had already promised them to others, and they are well cared for.'

"Now I wish to call public attention to this fact, which speaks for itself. Would the same General allow similar privileges to loyal ladies in behalf of loyal soldiers?

"CHARLES A. HAY.

"Harrisburg, Oct. 24, 1862.

☞ We publish this week, on the out-side of our paper, a speech delivered by Hon. Daniel S. Dickinson, at a Union War Meeting in the city of Brooklyn, to which we call the attention of our readers. It will be remembered that this is the same distinguished gentleman who the Star so frequently quoted, and, seemingly, so heartily endorsed when it told us it was in favor of a vigorous prosecution of the war and of putting down this unholy rebellion. And we suppose it will not now, since it has left us and gone over to the enemy, deny that Dickinson was a Democrat and advocated the nomination and election of John C. Breckinride for the Presidency. Our readers will see that this patriot has left that treasonable party—that party whose leaders by falsehood and misrepresentation would sacrifice our country for office and power. He has abandoned the foul party and upholds the constitution and the laws with all his power and ability. He loves his country and no party drill can drive him to the support of treason. We ask the Star to inform us whether it endorses the sentiments uttered in the speech referred to. What do you say, Mr. Star? Walk up to the scratch and let there be no dodging. If you can spare the time and space and like the subject we would be pleased to have your views at length and have you tell us whether you now subscribe to the doctrine preached through your paper a year ago, before you were bought over to the support of treason.

Letter from Kentucky.

We have been handed, by a friend, a letter written by Mr. Jesse Darragh, a young son of Capt. Jno. S. Darragh, of Rochester, to his sister. He is a member of the original Anderson Troupe, a Pennsylvania organization, now in service in Kentucky. From it, we are permitted to copy the following extract:

Camp Near Crab Orchard, Ky.

Dear Sister:—I sit down this morning to write you few lines hoping they will find you all well. My health is very good at present, and I hope it will continue so. I will not try to write all I have seen since I last wrote We left Bridgetown on the 6th and got to Chaplin Hills on the 8th, having traveled about 13 miles, when, coming out on the rebels, they opened a deadly fire on our troops. I have seen some little fighting, but never seen the like of this before. In the evening, about 4 o'clock, I was sent to Gen. Rosseau with a dispatch, and on arriving I found the General on the [illegible] looked surprised at me. He then asked me how I had got there. I told him that I had some trouble, but got through safe. He said I had done more than he had expected. He then asked me if I could get back again. I told him that I could try. He then gave me one for Gen. Buell with which I returned in safety. I then received one for Gen. M'Cook. On arriving on the field I made for his Headquarters, but on getting within one hundred yards of his quarters, I found, to my surprise, a Rebel battery just getting ready to fire. I turned my horse and started back in double-quick. I found Gen. McCook about a mile back on the road. I told him what I had done; he told me that I would have to look out for them; about half an hour afterwards three of our boys was taken by going to the same place. This is all I can tell you about the fight; the papers will tell you more than I can. We have about 25 men for duty, and we are on horseback every day.

Your Brother,
JESSE HART DARRAGH.

Pennsylvania Volunteers.

Further advices from General Mitchell's recent brilliant reconnoisance Charleston S. C. show that Pennsylvania troops fairly carried off the honors of the day. The troops from our State that were engaged were six hundred of the 47th, under Colonel Good, four hundred of the 55th, under Colonel White, and the 76th. A correspondent by no means disposed to report matters in our favor is thus constrained to write:

"If heavy losses may indicate gallantry, the palm may be given to Col. Good's noble regiment, the 48th Pennsylvania Volunteers. Upon this command the brunt of the battle fell.—Out of six hundred who went into action, nearly one hundred and fifty were killed or wounded. All the Keystone troops did splendidly." To this is to be added that the chief work done by the navy in this affair was splendidly achieved through Pennsylvania leaders. The naval command was held by that gallant South Carolinian, whose heart is as true to the Union as his genius is adequate to the important professional duties assigned him, Charles Steedman; while the finest frigate of the service, the pride of Philadelphia workmanship, the Wabash, handsomely seconded the efforts of Commander Steedman. The ultimate object of General Mitchell's undertaking failed only for want of material and men. Let him be reenforced speedily from those quarters that have just shown their native prowess, and the viper's nest of rebellion is doomed.

☞ That braggart, Gen. Hindman of Ark., is now in prison at Little Rock.

Letter from Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 30, '62.

Editor Argus: The good and loyal people of this city have lately had their patience again tested severely. The General in command here, if he does not sympathise with the aristocratic secessionists of the city, he openly associates with them and with them exclusively. It has been said "straws shows how the wind blows." But in his case there is no need of straws to show how violently the wind blows in that direction. Recently, Rev. Dr. Hay, of Harrisburg, one of the most loyal men, it is said, in your State, was arrested by this great General for publishing a simple fact in relation to the treatment of rebels.

Some of the most loyal citizens of this city have recently been dragged from their business and homes for daring to express their opinion of this same General.

Gov. Bradford, of this State, has gone to Washington, it is said, to ask the removal of Gen. Wool. I also hear that Gov. Curtin, of your State, has joined in this request.

I see old Parson Brownlow, in a late letter, wishes that sufficient gunpowder was placed under West Point to blow it into the Hudson.

Col. Benton frequently ventilated this hot-bed of aristocracy in the Senate. Many of his statements on the subject, now seems almost prophetic.

By a recent publication, it appears, the rebels have more graduates of West Point than the parent Government which educated them. I, myself, know more than one of these chaps, who are receiving pay, and are daily abusing the administration.

Unless there is soon a sifting of the false officers from the true and loyal, I fear for the result. It is too bad that men by the ten thousand should be sacrificed, that money should be poured out like water, and all of little or no avail, simply because we have so many incompetent or disloyal officers.

A CITIZEN.

The Army Vote.

A few days since we published a letter from one of our correspondents in the army of the Potomac, containing among others expressions which we neither vouched nor endorsed, the following:

"Election day passed quietly by.—Very few votes were polled in our regiment, owing, probably, to the fact that but one set of tickets (Republican) was furnished us. We have all changed our politics since we left home, and do not vote that ticket now!"

We were content to publish the assertion without comment, preferring to allow our readers to form their own opinions as to the reliability of the writer. A soldier, whether an officer or a private, has, it is well known, very little chance of forming a just estimate of the opinion of his fellow soldiers, beyond the immediate circle of his comrades in mess and battle; and as the wearer of green glasses is [illegible] so [illegible] number of [illegible] cian is apt to form a judgment chiefly colored by his own views. Inasmuch as the writer never was a Republican, or in any way identified with that party, his opinions as to a change of sentiment among the troops, would carry very little weight in any unprejudiced examination of facts. Human nature is largely given to accepting as truth what it hopes may be true.

We make this sentiment for the benefit of those country papers which have copied and commented on the extract from our correspondent's letter, as a truth in some measure endorsed by the Dispatch. The army vote is liable to so many inaccuracies, and is so little to be relied on as a fair expression of opinion, that we have preferred to base no comments on those we have already published.—Our contemporaries have chosen, however, to publish a rash assertion of a single soldier as the heralding of a great truth and they should be content to abide by the issue. To show how baseless and utterly unreliable the assertion was, we need only refer to the army vote as published in this and other counties of the State and the wrath of the opposition aroused by any proposition to count the vote in the general election returns. From the returns of the Allegheny county regiments we find that the Republican vote polled was about ten to one in comparison with the Democratic.—Throughout the State a preponderance of Republican votes, almost as] marked, were cast by the volunteers in service.—Pitts. Dispatch.

Headquarters Army of the Potomac, Nov. 2d, 10 p. m.—To his Excellency the President—I have just received a dispatch from Gen. M'Clellan, dated at Snicker's Gap, 6 p. m., stating that he has full possession of the Gap. When Gen. Hancock arrived there it was in possession of the enemy's cavalry, who were at once driven out. A column of from 5,000 to 6,000 rebel infantry advanced to retake it and were dispersed by five of our rifled guns.—The position is a strong one from either side.

It is said that Jackson and A. P. Hill are in the valley opposite. Gen. Pleasanton has driven the enemy's cavalry several miles beyond Union, at three o'clock p. m., exploding one of their caissons, and capturing ten of their wounded left behind.

R. B. MARCY, Chief of Staff.

Charlestown, Va., Oct. 31.—Maj. Gen. Cox's army arrived here to-day. The rebel army under Generals Echols, Floyd and Jenkins, retreated from here last Monday. The march of our troops up the Kanawha Vally was conducted in the best military order, without a single casualty. The entrance of our army into this town was of a triumphal character. The citizens giving our troops a welcome.

Letter from "Occasional."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30, 1862.

The departure of Major General Banks for New York, on Monday afternoon, there to open his headquarters, and to organize the great expedition about to be set on foot under his command, marks one of the most important epochs of this war. Various conjectures, near and wide of the truth, will of course be hazarded as to the design and destination of this important expedition. Information derived from various sources and inferences from sundry facts induce me to believe that the following will be found, substantially, the aim and purpose of this new movement. The attention of the Government of the United States has, for a long time been earnestly directed towards Texas, and the importance of extended military operations to restore the Federal authority in that State has been strongly and persistently urged by several delegations of loyal Texans, under the solemn assurance that a large portion of the people of Texas are only waiting for an opportunity to return to their allegiance, and establish, within their boundaries, one or more free States, thus putting under progressive control and civilized cultivation the entire empire which declared its independence of Mexico nearly thirty years ago, and was settled to the United States in 1844. To accomplish this vast design will undoubtedly be the object of the expedition under Gen. Banks. Only two weeks ago an expedition also looking towards Texas, after first clearing the Mississippi of rebel obstructions, was entrusted to Maj. Gen. M'Clernand of Illinois, who is now in the Western States earnestly engaged in its organization. The concurrent movement on the seaboard, headed by General Banks, and looking to the same object, after having been long favorably considered by the military authorities, has now been formally decided upon. Texas wrested from the rebels and a loyal Government organized at its capital and throughout the State will be an immense gain to the Republic, and a fatal blow to the rebellion. The commercial and political results of the reconquest of Texas will surpass in importance any and everything heretofore attempted in this [illegible] they soon will discover that the cotton country is being rapidly made tributary to the regular Government of the United States and is [illegible] taken from them the masses [illegible] from this region now [illegible] Virginia will either fall an easy [illegible] to our armies in that quarter, or [illegible] too late seek to fly back [illegible] their own section to the [illegible] Union columns. The choice of [illegible] commanders of this movement is for many reasons a happy one. General Banks and General McClernand are both volunteer officers who [illegible] already greatly distinguished themselves by gallant service [illegible] the Northern and Eastern States [illegible] al Banks enjoys the unbounded confidence of the people, while [illegible] Clernand has inspired the whole West with enthusiastic faith in his [illegible] unitiring energy, and military [illegible] The troops of New England and New York, under the leadership of Banks, will vie with the gallant soldiers of Indiana, Illinois, and Iowa, under the leadership of McClernand, and all will strive who shall show the greatest devotion to the Government, the most determined hatred of the rebellion, and, the most gallant zeal in closing out the war. Banks, the stanch Republican, and McClernand, the chivalric Douglas Democrat, are specially fitted for this great mission, and signally qualified to lead these two armies to a crowning victory. The people of the United States will also be glad to know that it is designed by the Government to clothe these two commanders with the largest discretionary power. They have entered upon their task, therefore, with the full confidence of the Administration, and will be supported by the whole influence of the civil and military authorities; and should the aims and results of these conjoined expeditions prove to be what I have foreshadowed, then every patriotic heart will give utterance to a prayer that God may speed them triumphantly on their way.

OCCASIONAL.

New York, Nov. 2.—Port Royal dates to the 20th ult. have been received. Two British rebel steamers, the Anglio and Scotian, were captured on the 27th ult., and taken to Port Royal. The two steamers with their contraband cargoes are valued at one million of dollars. Another British steamer, the Minneho, was run ashore and destroyed.

It was reported at Port Royal that the rebel ram was coming down the river from Savannah.

Philadelphia, November 1.—There will be no draft in Philadelphia. The Commissioners having ascertained, after careful examination and official count by precincts, that more men have enlisted from this city than necessary to fill its quota.

Headquarters Army of the Potomac, Oct. 31.—Affairs remain quiet in front The enemy is undoubtedly in strong force between the Potomac and Winchester, and is evidently much puzzled concerning our movements. Parties coming within our lines report that great activity prevails in all rebel camps, and that not a little uneasiness is manifested by their officers.

The troops have nearly all received their winter clothing, though there is a great deficiency of good shoes and blankets. These, however, will soon be supplied.

Washington, Nov. 1.—The latest news from the front is that the rebels still hold Thoroughfare Gap with a small picket.

Gen. Bayard's cavalry was attacked yesterday afternoon at Aldie. He encamped last night two miles east of that place, from which fact is is inferred he repulsed the rebel force.

Wheatland, Nov. 2.—Our cavalry made a reconnoissance yesterday to within three miles of Winchester.—At dusk a large force of the rebel cavalry with artillery were discovered on the slopes within the vicinity of Snicker's Gap, where the enemy have recently erected a signal station. Heavy cannonading was heard last evening at Purcellville, and it was supposed there that a skirmish was going on between Gen. Bayard and Gen. Stuart.

A reconnoissance this morning reveals the fact that the rebels are in strong force between Snicker's Gap and Philmont, on the western side of the Blue Ridge.

Headquarters Army of the Potomac, Nov. 2, 9 a. m.—Gen. Pleasanton yesterday came up with the enemy's cavalry and artillery at Philmont, about eleven o'clock. The fight, which was conducted wholly by artillery, lasted about five hours, when the enemy retreated to Union—a small town three miles beyond. Our loss was one killed, fourteen wounded. The enemy's force consisted of a portion of Stuart's cavalry, and one battery. Five of them are known to have been killed.

This morning Pleasanton renewed the attack at eight o'clock. At ten o'clock he was reinforced by a brigade of infantry, and, at one o'clock the rebels fell back from Union and our troops occupied the town. Our loss up to three o'clock to-day was one killed and four wounded. During the action a rebel caisson was exploded by one of our shells. The loss is not known.

The firing in that direction was very heavy from three o'clock till dark, but the result is not known.—Gen. M'Clellan visited the front during this afternoon.

What direction the rebel troops were moving is not known, the distance too great.

Another part of our army took possession of Snicker's Gap to-day.

Three Brigades of rebel infantry were, at last advices, advancing up the north side of the mountain in two columns. Firing followed but the results are not yet known.

Cairo, Nov 1.—The only news from Tennessee is, that on Friday our pickets were driven in at Chevilla. This is thought, however, to indicate a reconnoissance rather than an attack on our forces. The rebels seem to be closing up by way of Grand Junction, and will thus be in position to menace both Bolivar and Corinth. It is barely possible yet that they have not enough men to attack, but have pushed their columns forward in a threatening manner in order to gain time at Holly Springs and other points South.

Later.—Corinth dispatches of yesterday say that the mail messenger came in there to-day from Chevilla and reported that our scouts had scoured the country as far as Ripley, but discovered no traces of the enemy.

One arrival from the South reports all quiet at Helena. In Memphis orders have been issued by Gen. Sherman that all steamers with common and other merchandize shall be convoyed by gunboats upon proper notification at Cairo or Memphis.

We have a rumor by the way of Cairo that Mobile is taken. The report was brought in by rebel prisoners taken by our scouts.

Drafted Men of Greene.—The Waynesburg Republican says: All day Thursday last, stalwart, sturdy men came pouring in, and at evening the town was overflowing. The Commissioner had exercised the wise precaution of prohibiting the sale of liquors, and the night passed more peaceably than had been anticipated. On one occasion, late in the evening, we heard one party up street singing, "We'll hang old Abe on a crab-apple tree," and another down street echo in response, "Hurra for Jeff Davis" which sounded harshly and ominously enough. But with this exception, we are cognizant of no blameworthy conduct.

DIED.—On the 30th, ult., WILLIAM C. son of Thomas J. and Caroline C. Schley, aged 1 year and 5 months.

☞ For sale by D. Minis, jr., Beaver; S. Cross, Rochster; Waggoner & Lowry, Freedom; J. Nichols, Baden; J. Sargent, New Brighton, John Black, Darlington, Duncan & Edgar, Falleton, and by dealers every where. Feb. 13, '62.

THE SOLDIER'S TRUE FRIEND!
ALWAYS READY!
HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

LONG marches, sore and stiff joints, blistered and inflamed feet, all these the soldier must endure, MOTHERS, REMEMBER THIS, when your sons are grasping their muskets to meet danger, think what relief a pot of this ALL HEALING & COOLING Salves will give to the one you love when far away from home and friends. It hardens and makes tough the feet so that they can endure great fatigue. It soothes and relieves the inflamed and stiffened joints, leaving them supple, strong and vigorous, while for it stands unequalled, removing and preventing every vestige of inflammation and gently drawing the edges together, it quickly and completely heals the most frightful wounds.

SABRE CUTS AND GUNSHOT WOUNDS

WIVES AND SISTERS OF OUR VOLUNTEERS

Yo cannot put into the Knapsacks of your Husbands and Brothers, a more valuable or more necessary gift than a supply of this EXTRAORDINARY MILITARY SALVE!

The lonely sentry walking his rounds at night, exposed to drenching rains and chill night air, is often seized the most VIOLENT PAINS, COUGHS, and SUFFOCATING HOARSNESS, first symptoms of QUICK CONSUMPTION, but if supplied with HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT, all danger is averted, a few Pills taken night and morning, and the ointment briskly rubbed twice a day over the throat and chest will remove the SEVEREST PAINS and stop the most distressing or DANGEROUS COUGH Thefore we say to the whole army,

SOLDIERS ATTENTION!!

See to your own health, do not trust to the Army supplies although most valuable. These PILLS and OINTMENT have been thoroughly tested, they are the only remedies used in the European Camps and Barracks, for over forty years Doctor Holloway has supplied all the armies in Europe, and during the CRIMEAN CAMPAIGN he established a depot at Balaclava, for the exclusive sale of these GREAT REMEDIES, many a time his special Agent there has sold over a ton in weight of the Ointment in a single day. These terrible and fatal enemies of the Soldier in Camp, DIARRHEA, DYSENTERY, SCURVY, SORES and SCROFULOUS ERUPTIONS, all disappear like a charm before these PILLS AND OINTMENT, and now while the Cry rings throughout the land,

TO ARMS! TO ARMS!

Do not let these brave men perish by disease, place in their hands these PRECIOUS REMEDIES, that will enable them to resist the dangerous exposures, the Fevers, the Chills, and the wounds which they cannot avoid, and what is more, cannot frequently get succor in the moment of need, whereas if our brave men have only to put their hands into their Knapsacks and find there a sure remedy for all the casualties of the battle field. How many thousands of lives would thus be saved who would otherwise perish before relief could be obtained.

CAUTION.—None are genuine unles the words "Holloway, New York, and London," are discernable as a water-mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

Sold at the Manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicines, throughout the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62 cents and $1 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

FRIENDS AND RELATIVES OF THE BRAVE SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS And Ointment.

ALL WHO have Friends and Relatives in the Army or Navy, should take especial care that they be amply supplied with those Pills and Ointment; and where the brave Soldiers and Sailors have neglected to provide themselves with them, no better present can be sent them by their friends. They have been proved to be the Soldier's never-failing friend in the hour of need.

COUGHS AND COLDS AFFECTING TROOPS

Will be speedily removed and effectually cured by using these admirable medicines, and by paying proper attention to the Directions which are attached to each Pot or Box.

SICK HEADACHES AND WANT OF APPETITE INCIDENTAL TO SOLDIERS.

These feelings which so sadden us, usually arise from trouble or annoyances, obstructed perspiration, or eating and drinking whatever is unwholesome, thus disturbing the healthful action of the liver and stomach. These organs must be relieved, if you desire to be well. The Pills, taking according to the printed instructions, will quickly a produce a healthy action in both liver and stomach, and as a natural consequence a clear head and good appetite.

WEAKNESS OR DEBILITY INDUCED BY OVER FATIGUE,

Will soon disappear by the use of these invaluable Pills, and the Soldier will quickly acquire additional strength. Never let the bowels be either confined or unduly acted upon. It may seem strange that Holloway's Pills should be recommended for Dysentery and Flux, many persons supposing that they would increase the relaxation. This is a great mistake, for these Pills will correct the liver and stomach and thus remove all the acrid humors from the system. This medicine will give tone and vigor to the whole organic system however deranged, while health and strength follow as a matter of course. Nothing will stop the relaxation of the Bowels so sure as this famous medicine.

VOLUNTEERS ATTENTION! INDISCRETIONS OF YOUTH.

Sores and Ulcers, Blotchings and Swellings, can with certainty be radically cured if the Pills are taken night and morning, and the ointment be freely used as stated in the printed instructions. If treated in any other manner they dry up in one part to break out in another. Whereas this Ointment will remove the humors from the system and leave the Patient a vigorous and healthy man. It will require a little perseverance in bad cases to insure a lasting cure.

FOR WOUNDS EITHER OCCASIONED BY THE BAYONET, OR SABRE OR THE BULLET, SORES OR BRUISES,

To which every Soldier and Sailor are liable there are no medicines so safe, sure and convenient as Holloway's Pills and ointment. The poor wounded and almost dying sufferer might have his wounds dressed immediately, if he would only provide himself with this matchless Ointment, which should be thrust into the wound and smeared all around it, then covered with a piece of linen from his knapsack, and compressed with a handkerchief. Taking night and morning 6 or 8 Pills, to cool the system and prevent inflamation.

Every Soldier's knapsack and Seaman's chest should be provided with these valuable Remedies.

CAUTION.—None are genuine unles the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernable as a water-mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

 Sold at the Manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicines, throughout the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62 cents and $1 each.

There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

MARRIAGE.

ITS loves and hates, sorrows and angers, hopes and fears, regrets and joys; MANHOOD, how lost, how restored; the nature, treatment and radical cure of spermaterrhœa or seminal weakness; involuntary emissions, sexual debility and impediments to marriage generally; nervousness, consumption, fits, mental and physical incapacity, resulting from SELF-ABUSE—are fully explained in the MARRIAGE GUIDE, by WM. YOUNG, M. D. This most extraordinary book should be in the hands of every young person contemplating marriage, and every man or woman who desires to limit the number of their offspring to their circumstances. Every pain, disease and ache incidental to youth, maturity and old age, is fully explained; every particle of knowledge that should be known is here given. It is full of engravings. In fact, it discloses secrets that every one should know; still it is a book that must be locked up, and not lie about the house. It will be sent to any one on the receipt of twenty-five cents in specie or postage stamps. Address DR. WM. YOUNG, 416 Spruce st., above Fourth, Philadelphia.

Afflicted and Unfortunate, no matter what may be your disease, before you place yourself under the care of any of the notorious QUACKS—native or foreign—who advertise in this or any other paper, get a copy of Dr. Young's book, and read it carefully. It will be the means of saving you many a dollar, your health, and possibly your life.

DR. YOUNG can be consulted on any of the diseases described in his publication, at his office, 416 Spruce Street, above Fourth, Philadelphia. Office hours from 9 to 3, daily. [mar26

AYER'S
CHERRY PECTORAL,

FOR THE RAPID CURE OF Colds, Coughs, and Hoarseness.

BRIMFIELD, MASS., 20th Dec., 1855.
DR. J. C. AYER: I do not hesitate to say the best remedy I have ever found for Coughs, Hoarseness, Influenza, and the concomitant symptoms of a Cold, is your CHERRY PECTORAL. Its constant use in my practice and my family for the last ten years has shown it to possess superior virtues for the treatment of these complaints. EBEN KNIGHT, M. D.

A. B. MORTLEY, Esq., of UTICA, N. Y., writes: "I have used your Pectoral myself and in my family ever since you invented it, and believe it the best medicine for its purpose ever put out. With a bad cold I should sooner pay twenty-five dollars for a bottle than do without it, or take any other remedy."

Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza.

SPRINGFIELD, MISS., Feb. 7, 1856.
BROTHER AYER: I will cheerfully certify your Pectoral is the best remedy we possess for the cure of whooping cough, croup, and the chest diseases of children. We of your fraternity in the South appreciate your skill, and commend your medicine to our people.
HIRAM CONKLIN, M. D.

AMOS LEE, Esq., MONTEREY, IA., writes, 3d Jan., 1856: "I had a tedious Influenza, which confined me in doors six weeks; took many medicines without relief; finally tried your Pectoral by the advice of our clergyman. The first dose relieved the soreness in my throat and lungs; less than one half the bottle made me completely well. Your medicines are the cheapest as well as the best we can buy, and we esteem you, Doctor, and your remedies, as the poor man's friend."

Asthma or Phthisic, and Bronchitis.

WEST MANCHESTER, PA., Feb. 4, 1856.
SIR: Your Cherry Pectoral is performing marvellous cures in this section. It has relieved several from alarming symptoms of consumption, and is now curing a man who has labored under an affection of the lungs for the last forty years. HENRY L. PARKS, Merchant.

A. A. RAMSEY, M. D., ALBION, MONROE CO., IOWA, writes, Sept. 6, 1855: "During my practice of many years I have found nothing equal to your Cherry Pectoral for giving ease and relief to consumptive patients, or curing such as are curable."

We might add volumes of evidence, but the most convincing proof of the virtues of this remedy is found in its effects upon trial.

Consumption.

Probably no one remedy has ever been known which cured so many and such dangerous cases as this. Some no human aid can reach; but even to those the Cherry Pectoral affords relief and comfort.

ASTOR HOUSE, NEW YORK CITY, March 5, 1856.
DOCTOR AYER, LOWELL: I feel it a duty and a pleasure to inform you what your Cherry Pectoral has done for my wife. She had been five months laboring under the dangerous symptoms of Consumption, from which no aid we could procure gave her much relief. She was steadily failing, until Dr. Strong, of this city, where we have come for advice, recommended a trial of your medicine. We bless his kindness, as we do your skill; for she has recovered from that day. She is not yet as strong as she used to be, but is free from her cough, and calls herself well.
Yours with gratitude and regard,
ORLANDO SHELBY, OF SHELBYVILLE.

Consumptives, do not despair till you have tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is made by one of the best medical chemists in the world, and its cures all around us bespeak the high merits of its virtues.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills.

THE sciences of Chemistry and Medicine have been taxed their utmost to produce this best, most perfect purgative which is known to man. Innumerable proofs are shown that these PILLS have virtues which surpass in excellence the ordinary medicines, and that they win unprecedentedly upon the esteem of all men. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. Their penetrating properties stimulate the vital activities of the body, remove the obstructions of its organs, purify the blood, and expel disease. They purge out the foul humors which breed and grow distemper, stimulate sluggish or disordered organs into their natural action, and impart healthy tone with strength to the whole system. Not only do they cure the every-day complaints of every body, but also formidable and dangerous diseases that have baffled the best of human skill. While they produce powerful effects, they are at the same time, in diminished doses, the safest and best physic that can be employed for children. Being sugar-coated, they are pleasant to take; and being purely vegetable, are free from any risk of harm. Cures have been made which surpass belief were they not substantiated by men of such exalted position and character as to forbid the suspicion of untruth. Many eminent clergymen and physicians have lent their names to certify to the public the reliability of my remedies, while others have sent me the assurance of their conviction that my Preparations contribute immensely to the relief of my afflicted, suffering fellow-men.

The Agent below named is pleased to furnish gratis my American Almanac, containing directions for their use and certificates of their cures, of the following complaints:—

Costiveness, Bilious Complaints, Rheumatism, Dropsy, Heartburn, Headache arising from a foul stomach, Nausea, Indigestion, Morbid Inaction of the Bowels and Pain arising therefrom, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, all Ulcerous and Cutaneous Diseases which require an evacuant medicine, Scrofula or King's Evil. They also, by purifying the blood and stimulating the system, cure many complaints which it would not be supposed they could reach, such as Deafness, Partial Blindness, Neuralgia and Nervous Irritability, Derangements of the Liver and Kidneys, Gout, and other kindred complaints arising from a low state of the body or obstruction of its functions.

Do not be put off by unprincipled dealers with some other pill they make more profit on. Ask for AYER'S PILLS, and take nothing else. No other they can give you compares with this in its intrinsic value or curative powers. The sick want the best aid there is for them, and they should have it.

CRITTENDEN'S PHILADELPHIA COMMERCIAL COLLEGE,
N. E. corner of 7th & Chestnut St.,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

THIS Institution, which was established in 1844, and is now consequently in the eighteenth year of its existence, numbers among its gratuates, hundreds of the most successful Merchants and Business Men of our Country.

The object of the Institution is solely to afford young men facilities for thorough preparation for business.

The branches taught are, Book-keeping, as applicable to the various departments of trade; Penmanship, both plain and ornamental; Commercial Law, mathematics, Navigation, Civil Engineering, Drawing, Phonography, and Modern Languages.

The system of Instruction is peculiar; no classes or set lessons are made use of, but each student is taught individually, so that he may commence at any time, and attend at whatever hours are most convenient.

Catalogues are issued annually after the 15th of April, containing names of the students for the year, and full particulars of terms, &c., and may be obtained at any time by addressing the Principal.

In extensive accommodations, wide-spread reputation, and the lengthy experience of the Principal, this Institution offers facilities superior to any other in the country, for young men wishing to prepare for business, and to obtain at the same time A DIPLOMA, which will prove a recommendation for them to any Mercantile House.

CRITTENDEN'S Series of Treatises on Book-Keeping, now more widely circulated than any other work on the subject, are for sale at the College.

S. HODGES CRITTENDEN,
Attorney-at-Law,

SELLERS' LIVER PILLS.

(THE ORIGINAL, ONLY TRUE AND GENUINE)
For 25 Years a Staple Remedy for
LIVER COMPLAINT
AND ALL BILIOUS DISEASES.

The ordinary evidences of Disease of the Liver are Pain and tenderness in the region of the Liver, sometimes dull and aching, increased by pressure, pain and Uneasiness in Breathing, Pain in the right Shoulder, uneasiness when lying upon the left side, increased size of the Liver, Short and Dry Cough, disordered stomach, Nausea, Yellowish Tinge on the eyes and skin, Headache, yellowish fur on the tongue, Bitterish taste in the mouth, heavy, dull sensation in the Brain, Depression of Spirits, amounting almost to Insanity, slight Fever toward evening, Loss of Appetite, Melancholy, with moroseness and Hypochondria, Neuralgia, dullness, a general feeling of Uneasiness, Languor, drowsiness, the patient conscious of something wrong in himself, and disposed to see nothing right in things about him, yet wholly unable to explain the cause of his sensations—with many others easily detected by resemblances to some one or other of the above. The Liver Pill will almost certainly arrest the disease if taken upon the appearance of the above symptoms, which if allowed to take its course, becomes chronic in its nature and almost incurable, producing great and constantly increasing suffering.

The use of this medicine will neither create a new disease nor complicate an existing one, but, in most cases, will prepare the system for the more vigorous remedies of the physician, should it be necessary to call in his aid.

SELLERS' COUGH SYRUP.

From A. Cushing, Druggist, S. Bend, Ind.

D. S. OWEN, Esq.—Dear Sir—In reply to your favor of the 13th instant, I would say that the sale of Sellers' Medicines has far exceeded my expectations; and in no case have they failed to produce the desired effect. The Cough Syrup is a cure for coughs, colds, &c., and the cheapness of the article places it within the reach of all, which, together with its efficacious qualities, renders it a universal favorite. Not a day passes without numerous calls for "the one thing needful," at this season of the year, viz. Sellers' Cough Syrup.

Sellers' VERMIFUGE.

From the Rev. S. Wakefield, former Pastor of the Liberty Street M. E. Church.

MR. R. E. SELLERS—It is from a sense of duty, as well as with great pleasure, that I bear testimony to the virtue of your justly celebrated Vermifuge. I procured a single bottle, and gave it to three of my children, who had been ill for several weeks. The eldest was seven years old, the next four, and the youngest eighteen months. The first passed fifty-six worms, the second forty-seven, and the third a considerable number, not distinctly recollected. Since then they have been doing well, and are now in good health. S. SELLERS' VERMIFUGE.
WORMS!

Every year Thousands of Children die from this terrible evil. This alarming mortality loudly calls for increased watchfulness and for greater care in the selection of the remedy. The sweeping opposition of many physicians to advertised worm medicines is, in a measure, justified by the injurious qualities of some of the vermifuges, and the positive inefficiency of most of the so-called "Worm Confections," "Worm Candies," "Worm Teas," &c. Even if some of the latter are as harmless as they are inefficient, the DELAY IT MAY COST LIFE. No thoughtful, sensible mother, will thus trifle with the life of her child.

LET PHYSICIANS SPEAK.
SELLERS' VERMIFUGE THE BEST IN USE.
HERE IS THE PROOF.

Licking Station, Ky. Dec. 17, 1845.
MR. R. E. SELLERS—Your Vermifuge possesses more virtue than any I ever used. I will state a case where I gave one vial. My brother's child was pining and wasting to a mere skeleton. In three hours after I gave the Vermifuge, the enormous quantity of upward of six hundred worms were passed. The child, that was given up for lost, is now as well as any in the neighborhood.
AMBROSE ARNETT, M. D.

Gallipolis, Ohio, April 1, 1847.
All that is required to give it reputation in any family, is a fair trial.
R. H. WILSON, M. D.

Point Pleasant, Va. Oct. 4, 1847.
MR. R. E. SELLERS—Having used it in my practice for the last four or five years, I think it decidedly the best preparation of the kind. I have heretofore used the preparation of the several other manufacturers. Yours, respectfully,
D. COUCH, M. D.

We might enumerate hundreds of other cases, were it necessary, but Sellers' Vermifuge has stood the searching test of the medical faculty and public for more than a quarter of a century, which, of itself, is conclusive of its entire safety, as well as the certainty of its effect.

NOTICE.—Extraordinary inducements are offered to dealers to recommend and sell other Vermifuges. Do not let unprincipled men palm off any of these on you. The best at any price is the cheapest, therefore ask for Sellers' Vermifuge, and take no other.
